On Monday, HE Foreign Minister Mohammed bin Abdulrahman Al-Thani spoke with the Editorial Board of the Washington Post – discussing the first two months of the illegal and unjustified Qatar Blockade. He expressed the State of Qatar's eagerness to engage in dialogue through diplomacy, and the reality that the blockade is not about the demands or accusations leveled by the blockading countries but is an attack on the sovereignty of the State and people of Qatar.

Analysis | The Qatari foreign minister makes his nation's case

"This is a high risk for world order, not just for Qatar."

Ambassador Meshal bin Hamad Al-Thani to Washington Post: Qatar has the right to chart its own course, without the interference of other nations, and that is what we can and will do.

Opinion | The blockade on Qatar is a smokescreen. Here's what's behind it.

It's an attempt to infringe upon Qatar's sovereignty and punish Qatar for its independence.
